Thank you for your recent gift. We have embraced the new name of Bringing Children Hope for over one year now. As I reflect on this, the idea of hope keeps coming to me. What does hope mean? I hope that my favorite team (the Chicago White Sox!) wins the championship. I can be hopeful but that will not likely happen, at least this season. However, that is not the hope that we are talking about. Romans 5:5, "Now hope does not disappoint, because the love of God has been poured out in our hearts by the Holy Spirit who was given to us."

The hope in Bringing Children Hope is one that points to our Savior. We just experienced Easter. The Gospel message celebrated on Easter is the center of this hope, yet the way BCH shows love to others is how the doors can be opened so those can hear the Good News. Because of your support, we are able to do that for children and families around the world.

In the United States, we are actively renovating our building to create a space for families to experience love and community. We are calling this the Hope Hub. We are painting walls and replacing our floor to empower families. This will provide hope in a tangible way – both in providing items that will help them through a crisis and forming a relationship to show that people care about them. It is exciting to see the changes to our office and know that lives will be changed!

In our international ministry, we see the hope manifested through the recent earthquake in Myanmar. Our partners were not affected by this disaster but they are passionate about their country, especially reaching the spiritually lost. BCH was able to send relief funds to our partners to provide assistance to those that are desperate. They will buy food, cooking oil, and solar lights to help them through this difficult time. It will meet their short-term need, but our partners will also use this opportunity to point them to the hope in Christ.

Thank you for your part in providing hope. We know that your sacrifice allows us to reach so many in need.

In Christ,
